WAYS THE WOMEN HAVE.

VERY PARTICULAR AS TO WHAT THEY EAT AND HOW IT IS PREPARED.

The Difference Between Her and Winnie Way In Her a Statement for Dinner—How Proprietors Vex the Consumer—The Inordinate Appetite of the Fair Ones for Ice Cream, Chocolate Drops, and Other Sweets.

"It takes the women to order a good dinner," said the proprietor of a restaurant yesterday. "They are good eating and they know what's good when some other restaurant man has one. Why, a man can't tell an even order whether steak with onions or not!" He chuckled at the thought of it. "Darling," he continued in a disgusted tone, "half of the men don't know onions from veal, anyway."

"Are the women more exacting than the men?"

"Not a bit of it. They, you see, feel embarrassed enough about the matter to encourage a fake. A man will gaze down the bill of fare carefully prepared and never think whether it's been free or for the worst of three months to prepare it. The women rise to an occasion instantly, in success. They are particular about their desserts, too. Why, if I'm to order an ordinary man for dinner he'll have to spend a good deal of time on the bill of fare. Then he'll say: 'Why, here's steak and ham fried a good deal of boiled ham—why, we don't have that. Take half of the mincemeat, no, I'll say, I don't think you need any, and a good deal of them, but it's not with preserves, and instead of a hot apple sauce take—' Then I'll say: 'I don't think you need any, but there is a delicious apple sauce to-day.' Then he'll say: 'Well, then, bring me a dish of it.' Why, half the time he don't know what he wants. Then half of the mincemeat, no, I'll say, I don't think you need any

SUPPER ONCE A WEEK FOR THE BRITISH TROOPS.

"THE SWITCH" FOR THE OTHERS.

THE Democratic trick will begin in this city tomorrow.

HAKKI PASHA, Sheikul of the Turkish Empire, is dead.

THE Chicago Club defeated the Detroits yesterday 5 to 4.

THE Forbes hit is yesterday's race of the New York Yacht Club.

A SCHEDULE of twenty-eight ladies in fifty hours is reported from Alexandria, La.

A CONSERVATIVE meeting at Islington, a northern suburb of London, ended in a riot.

FIVE Loyalists will storm England, unfurling the dangers, from their standpoint, of home rule.

CHICAGO bank clearings the last week were about $1,500,000 in excess of the corresponding week last year.

TOBACCO Knights of Labor at Milwaukee, charged with conspiracy, failed to appear for trial yesterday, and their bail was declared forfeited.

THE Davis Canadian of the Third Congressional District has made a fair and reasonable proposition to the members of the Bryan Committee. The latter or a majority of them will probably combine it is that light. It is time that the tendency in this strongly Republican district should cease and that the members of the party should harmonize and unite in electing some representative man to replace the very useless young man who now misrepresents the district as a Democrat.

JUDGE GARY is the well-paper man who are in trouble over the fact that there is little hope of prolonging their pool. The sea-sort is customary will expire by the statute of limitations with the close of this month, and it is believed to be next to impossible to make it extend the life of the pleonic. As a result the prices of all grades of wall-paper are expected to be reduced nearly one-half, except the fancy kinds that are made by hand. But it is anticipated that the decline in prices will cause so large an increase in the consumption that the wall-paper men will be able to avoid what some might think to be their constant destiny—namely: "going to the wall."

ILLINOIS'S boxing (drowsiness) bill has been disposed of for the present session by the Education and Labor Committee, which made a final adjournment without acting upon the five Energetics-statesmen's schemes. This bill was debated in the Senate for weeks and the discussion will no doubt have to be gone over again next winter. Hint is not an accepted with its pleas for universal premium or its schemes for digging canals in which water is to run by hill that he will overlook the project for voting the Tuskeny region into the hands of four school boards. The bill is sure to be brought up at the next session. A more effective opinion might have been put on the impracticable scheme by passing it to a vote instead of smothering it in committee.

THE Chicago money market was quiet and easy yesterday, some call loans being reported as low as 1½ per cent. The investment demand for local securities was dull. Eastern exchange was firm and sterling bills steady. The New York market for stocks opened easy, but closed firm.—The Chicago produce markets were less active, but grain was stronger, the loss of European advices favoring higher quotations for wheat. At one period with Friday, pork and meats closed 5½ cents higher, lard unchanged, wheat 1 cent higher, corn ½ cent higher, oats and Seconds Grain, rye ½ cent higher for June, and barley 1½ cents higher for September. Our receipts last week were less than the shipments by 17,000 bushels in wheat and greater by 413,000 bushels in corn. The corresponding week of this city to date includes 1,174,000 hogs, against 1,311,000 in the same time last year, and 400,000 to date in 1894.

THE great receivers of Baltimore are complaining loudly against what they claim to be a system of the railroads centering in that city in making freight rates to a few favored firms and forcing the rest to pay full rates for transportation service. The matter was officially taken up a few days ago by the Corn and Flour Exchange of that city, and a committee was appointed to take action on the subject. The kind of action decided upon is for local lodge of that kind which succeeds itself with signing a document to be published in the newspapers. The committee is instructed to confer with the United States Senators and Representatives in Congress, looking towards the enacting of their interest in acting such legislation as will prevent discrimination in freight rates. It is also reported to go before the committee having charge of the Longue Inter-State Commerce bill now pending before Congress.

IT is difficult to say how much ground there is for the complaint and the action resulted on; but no one conversant with the grain business can doubt that such discriminations are made on a large scale. The more is true of provisions, and probably of all other descriptions of produce which are handled in quantities large enough to make favoritism an object. Of course the remedy will hold good with regard to localities as well as to material—or rather we may say that the evil is too general to admit of being localized. Receivers and shippers of produce to this city have been discriminated against to this way almost ever since the railroads entered on the business of competing with the water route to the eastward. The pressure is much greater at some times than at others, and there has not been an such complaint heard here within the last few months of January. But the practice exists all the same, and the tendency is to be not disappeared. No one would watch the grain business here in any extent winter without being satisfied of two things. First, the rates made to shippers from points behind us were absolutely prohibitory to shipments from Chicago if the tariff rates here were first up to; and, secondly, a few parties did manage to do a fair volume of business on that standard, which others could not. The inference is explain that it was entirely to a mistaken one. It suffices not standard the favored ones are dividends in the railroads or have liberal holding that effect. The result is the same. The general rule tends to a condition of almost total servitude while a few transact the business of dictating grain movement during a part of the winter.

IT is the quality of the railroad business, more than all else put together, that has stirred up the people of the United States, East and West, to ask for relief at the hands of Congress. They know that the favoritism has been forced a network all through the country of railroading in the United States, and can see no way out of it except by an appeal to Washington. They feel so very strongly in regard to it that it is to be feared they would tolerate dictatorship or bank permission to any measure that would assure them of relief in this particular rather than fail to get it. It will be well for the railroad men to recognize this in time they had approved by the action of Congress in response to the prayer of a long outraged public.

A HOUSE DIVIDED AGAINST ITSELF.

An analysis of the vote on the motion to take up the Bartlett Tariff Bill for consideration in the House Thursday last shows that among the 177 members voting against consideration were the following thirty-five Democrats:

On the vote to concur in the action of the Committee of the Whole in striking out the enacting clause of the 1894 Tariff bill, the 4th of May, 1894, the following forty-one Democrats were among the 158 members voting yea:

From a comparison of the two foregoing statements it will be seen that the following fifteen Democrats voted adversely on the Harrison Tariff bill both in 1894 and 1896:

These Democrats—Bynum, Snyder, Stone, and Wise (Virginia)—who voted to strike out the enacting clause of the 1894 bill voted Thursday for consideration, but would probably have voted against the passage of the bill. The remaining twenty-three Democrats whose names appear as recorded in the vote of 1894 and not in that of 1896 were for the most part not returned to the Forty-ninth Congress, but a few were returned and retired, and, so far as we have heard, none were defeated on account of their opposition to the bill of 1894.

These figures show how hopelessly the Democratic party is divided upon tariff reform and schedules of taxation, and how utterly it is to expect anything from that party in that direction. In two Congresses where they have had a powerful working majority they have demonstrated their utter inability to secure definite action upon the most important issue before the country—the only issue upon which it is possible today for any party to formulate a policy or adopt a principle. Their leader's attempts to have the tariff discussed and measures reformed have been frustrated by the antagonism of a majority of the party, and it is a fact worth considering that the Democracy cannot come to an agreement on the tariff question from year to year after year of public interest that has arisen, or is likely to arise, in its administration.

The defeat of the President and the bottom of the party in the House would have been far more decisive if the bill had been debated and put upon its passage. W. D. Hill of Ohio, in a letter written for publication, says that at least thirty Democrats voted for consideration who would have voted against the passage of the bill if it had come up for a final revision without amendment.

GLADSTONE AND SALISBURY.

Mr. Gladstone's Edinburg speech is of the more interesting because of Lord Salisbury's speech at Leeds, delivered at the same time and presented to the reading public of the world the same day. The Premier's foolish address made nearly every one of the arguments put forward by Lord Salisbury. The latter says the Premier's bill is dead and has been abandoned by its own parents. Mr. Gladstone avers that the bill died with Parliament, but that the principle survives, and he plainly intimates that the plan which the bill embodied holds the field yet. "I never will accept a new plan unless I believe it to be better than the old one," he says amid the cheers of his foolish audience. The cheers, however, go for less stated over and over again, to the astonishment of an Irish visitor to Canada, who asked why Legislators at Parliament to manage their affairs. He will not allow his opponents to shirk this issue. They must fight the electoral battle on it without going into details. The only alternative policy that is worthy of consideration is that announced by Lord Salisbury—coercion for twenty years. The Tory leader attempted to explain the announcement at the Leeds meeting. But what Lord Salisbury said amounted into for the expression of other views, as Mr. Gladstone has pointed out, nothing less than coercion. It is not proposed to apply the same laws to Great Britain, though other to more rife in that country than in Ireland. The Tory Government before it went out of office had practically announced a resort to coercion until the fourth session of its existence. The intention to suppress the National League, whose only crime is that it contains political agitators and protects evicted tenants, was totally avowed then. In order to carry out this policy every jail in Ireland would have to be filled with men who could not be placed on trial, as no tangible charge could be proved against them. Mr. Gladstone insists, and properly insists, that this proposed legislation and suppression amount coercion. The Tory leader in this matter cannot get out of the net which his own words have inextricably woven around him.

As to the first plank of conciliation, Mr. Gladstone merely that they are gratuitously over stating and over resisting, and Salisbury's speech bears this out in this. The Tory leader will have nothing to do with Chamberlain's county boards so far as Ireland is concerned, nor with Lord Hartington's plan of delegation, nor Mr. Goschen's inestimable scheme of decentralization. But, said Lord Salisbury at Leeds, the message their local affairs better, or at least more to their taste, time-strangers, and they can have in the practice of local self-government there duties in the Imperial Parliament.

And besides it would take a long time to minister to bring the Irish "into the habits of mutual forbearance necessary for a civilized community." So there shall be no local self-government, and Hartington, Goschen, and Chamberlain are but driving their opponents in preparing for them will be. Mr. Gladstone, then, is quite right in stating that the electors will have to decide between a policy of wise concession and unending coercion.

Mr. Gladstone appeals to his countrymen to approve his policy not only because it will bring happiness to Ireland but will bring honor to Great Britain. He advises them to act justly, because in so doing they will act strongly. Coercion has failed in the past. It has become more and more ineffective at each repetition of its use and failure. Distinctive such as proposed by the pope "coercing" would but anger the Irish and of the most time place in their hands weapons for resisting that which they would now thankfully receive as a gift. Mr. Gladstone appealed especially to the Scotch people for this. They are ready to decide the electoral contest. Lord Salisbury has appealed to their strong religious prejudices. Mr. Gladstone has appealed to their sense of justice and to their patriotism. What is the case in Scotland, he says, has convinced him that the people of that country are on the side of Ireland and not union. The difficulties are great, he acknowledges, but he has assurance of victory. "When the contest is settled and the settlement has passed away it will consolidate the old positions of religious disability, parliamentary reform, and free trade. The people will wonder why opposition was raised." Mr. Gladstone has staked his life on the issue.

THE RAISE OF THE SUGAR SCHEDULE.

Mayor Harrison in an interview concerning the compensation to be paid for the La Salle street tunnel says: "The North Side ratepayers should be enabled to say for the tunnel in exact proportion to the loss of its use they may still cause the city. Speaking in a general way I believe that if the company builds a double iron bridge at Clark street and maintains the tunnel, it would be for the best interests of the city to give it up." In this connection it is stated that if the ordinance recommended by the majority of the Council Committee on Railroads should pass, Mr. Yerkes will agree to accept the tunnel and "hand over the $300,000" to build the Clark street bridge. There is grave danger that the interests of the city will be sacrificed by the acceptance of this sum as full compensation. There is no doubt that a majority of the Council will vote to adopt the Charles Cutts proposition, and it seems from the Mayor's interview that he is disposed to ratify the action of the Aldermanic majority.

Now, it should be borne in mind that the compensation to be paid for the tunnel is not, as the Mayor says, the measure of the loss of its use to the city, but the measure of its value to the railroad company. It is not easy to estimate the value of the tunnel to the city as a thoroughfare; it is much easier to place a figure on its value to the corporation that seeks to use it. That would be at the very least a fair percentage on what it cost the city to construct the tunnel. That is the view of Rosen, Tuthmann and Otis, who have signed the minority report in favor of demanding $1,500,000 annual rental for the underground railway. This represents a per cent on $15,000,000, and it is the least that ought to be accepted. The Mayor and the Aldermen who appear to advocate the exchange of the tunnel for $300,000 are not wholly mindful of the public interests in this matter. It is their duty to drive as hard a bargain with the railroad company as they can justly and fairly do. The situation confers upon the tunnel and no effort to pay for it. It will be a most valuable plant, insuring economy of time and power in the operation of the cable line. It will be worth, after all expenses are deducted, much more than even the ingenuity of the Railroad Committee imagines that the company shall pay. Mayor Harrison is in a position to secure the price demanded for the city. He has events power. It does not need that he shall have the support of the majority of the Council. He will need but the active support of fifteen of the fifty-one Aldermen to compel the railroad company to pay a fair rental for the tunnel. Should he succeed or in any way hasten the Cutts-Clarke scheme to give the street corporation $300,000 worth for $150,000 he cannot look back with the public or the newspapers if his course shall be severely condemned.

ATTORNEYS FOR THE ANARCHIST CASES.

Persons have an interest in the case against the Anarchists, and who think they can study the service because they have read newspaper accounts and formed opinions about the Anarchistic measures, should understand definitely just what the law of Illinois is on this subject. The rule which controls testimony, resulting case from the jury box and requires none of great importance to be determined by jurors drawn from the west (grocers, bankers from of the community does not prevail in this State. The Illinois statute requires that in a case of challenge that a juror has said in the newspapers or because of the character of the crime with which the prisoner is charged he shall be excused, if he states that he has formed an opinion or impression as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, unless he further states that he can render an impartial verdict upon the evidence. If any of the jurors charged with the service of the prisoners are honored to be there to acquitted, but let the verdict come from an intelligent jury, not from illiterate creatures who cannot read the newspapers.

Any reasonable, law-abided man ought to be able to act as an impartial juror in these cases, although he may have read everything published in the press regarding the horrible affair. The publishers in question have made up of careful statements and interviews and even presented simply as the best information then obtainable. It was shown that a great crime had been committed, but it still remains doubtful just who were in the conspiracy and what are the respective degrees of guilt. The prisoners are to be put on trial and compelled to testify, and all the information that could by the officers or by the defendants will be brought to the light. In this state of affairs any candid man must hold himself open to further enlightenment and be willing to modify or change his opinions as the law and the facts proven in evidence may require. When the need for an impartial jury is so great will men who claim to be good citizens shirk the service by declaring themselves so prejudiced that they cannot decide according to the law and the facts?

STEALING A REPUTATION.

The Ute Indian Reservation, which contains about 4,000,000 acres of the richest pasture lands in Western Colorado, south of the Yellowstone, is apparently in a fair way to pass into the possession of neighboring settlers. Under their treaty with the Government the Utes have the right with certain restrictions to lease their lands for grazing purposes. The conditional right of entry has been greatly abused by cattlemen, who are said to have committed trespasses to the extent of thousands of heads of stock. Unless a few months ago from the agent to these trespassers to remove their cattle from the reservation was followed by a movement on their part to secure permits to graze cattle there, and it is alleged a sum of money was contributed to put the project through. As a result the agent has been granting such permits, or renewals of permits granted earlier, at the absurdly low rate of 10 cents a head for a year, although there is believed to be no authority for such a practice. The Government has no right under the treaty to dispose of the lands of the reservation without the consent of the Indians.

The ottimans, having secured the privilege, have turned thousands upon thousands of their cattle in upon the best river bottoms, agricultural, and pasture lands, and are now reported to be building permanent improvements upon them that they may be enabled to hold them against both the settlers when the reservation comes to be thrown open. The greater portion of the reservation is on the Ute reserve, and the Indians, who have no lands for such business, and who intend never to be overrun of the actual settlers of others, are getting little or nothing in return, while they run the risk of having their scanty herds of cows and ponies absorbed by the great traveling herds of the whites. The matter ought to be investigated promptly and the question of permits definitely decided before the settlement further strengthens their encroachments; for it will be an ugly task to oust them when the reservation shall be thrown open for settlement.

MR. GLADSTONE'S manifesto has forced the leaders of the Hartington-Chamberlain Party outline to unify their progress. Lord Salisbury is now vigorously repudiating the Unionist-Unionist policy of a couple of weeks ago, and proposes an intangible and noisy plan of administrative reform for Ireland instead. Mr. Goschen advocates decentralization, Lord Hartington delegation, and Mr. Chamberlain county boards. The last defect of all these aims is that they fail to satisfy the Irish demand. They will be accepted only in so far as they may lead to concessions through the added power they would give the Irishmen. Concessions of the kind proposed would only prepare the way for coercion. Mr. Gladstone's proposals have been accepted as a satisfactory and final settlement of the Anglo-Irish quarrel. The choice for the British electors therefore is to declare in favor of the broader scheme or to elect a majority in favor of Conservatives or Union. Lord Rosebery has, paraphrasing Mr. Gladstone, put the case well. The Government party is for Unity and real union between Great Britain and Ireland, the opposing party is for small concessions and large doses of coercion. The Grand Old Man insists on keeping the main issue before the people. He refuses to discuss the drifting, stumbling, halting policy of the opposition.

The Industrial Education Committee of New York has secured the cooperation of the Department of Public Instruction and of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the State in actively promoting the manual-training idea. Senator Warner Miller has also promised his assistance and will in a few days deliver an address on the subject. He is of opinion that some form of industrial training ought to be introduced into every public school in the State. Commissioner Peck of the Bureau of Labor Statistics says:

> Most of the children in the public schools are the offspring of poor people. They have only to attend a few years, at most, before they are old enough to begin to earn their own living. Many parents would desire to have their children learn a trade, but they are unable to pay the tuition charged by the apprenticeship system. Besides, the boy who learns a trade is not allowed to earn much money during the first few years of his apprenticeship. Many boys who have been through the grammar grades of the public schools are unable to find employment because they have no trade. Many of them are compelled to go into the streets as newsboys, bootblacks, or peddlers, and they soon become confirmed idlers. Manual training in the public schools would be a great benefit to the children of the poor, and would be the means of keeping many boys from the streets and from the reformatories.

The Board of Education will soon have passed upon some contemplated improvements in the public schools of Chicago. Eight rooms existed from the act, a number of new ones erected, and a short organization was actively resumed. It was one of the most useful of crimes. There are the best facts in the case. On there has been no rise, and there is prospect that values will not advance much of the kind's longer, with the pleasant passing movement of [illegible] Would a rapid boom injurious to more than the [illegible] or cost? That would they have speculated off? With such the cases

The Grand Old Party's Another "Cut to Die" Article from the Same Source.

Chicago Times, June 21: That which goes by the name of Democratic party is manifested only in the forms, terms, and methods of the election machine. It is not a formation of statesmen around any embodied political question. It is not a formation of representative men around any political question. Though it is a name applied to a majority of representatives, it is not a name of the majority in any political purpose. It is not a party [illegible] question, or demands the suppression of the evil in the political policy of the nation on any public question. It is not the governing party. The proof of this has been furnished by a final division among the representatives of 10 states on every public question of importance that has come before Congress since a majority against these confessing their claims up to the election.

It is erroneous [illegible]. It is a theoretical claim. It is a case of conjecture to capture the votes of electoral fools for the profit of office-seeking wards. The theory that one man has a right to one of every political office, rank, and title, as such, is erroneous. They are pro-[illegible] and free-silver, anti-[illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

IN GENERAL.

The resolution supporting a conference of the State and Territ Congressional Committees was adopted at the meeting of the men there, but eight have been sent to the Senate, but no action has yet been reached.

County-Attorney Lee left last night for Washington on private business. He will be absent about one week. County Commissioner Van Pelt returned from Washington yesterday morning.

Mrs. Eureka Storey applied to Judge Tuley last week to have Mr. Farnsworth, business manager of the Times, discharged. The court refused, it is said, because there was no grounds to warrant it.

The street railway companies have been notified that the paving of grade crossings is necessary to existing agreements and that the tracks must be laid crosswise so as to lessen the danger of damage and delay due to horses slipping.

The inquisition yesterday, as observed by Coroner, upstairs, 45 Madison street, Opera Building, was at 2 p. m., 27°; 3 p. m., 27°; 4 p. m., 27°; 5 p. m., 27°; 6 p. m., 27°; 7 p. m., 27°; 8 p. m., 27°; 9 p. m., 27°; 10 p. m., 27°; 11 p. m., 27°; 12 p. m., 27°; 1 p. m., 27°; 2 p. m., 27°; 3 p. m., 27°. Barometer, 9 a. m., 30.05; 3 p. m., 30.

A five-ounce stained-glass window was on exhibition last week in the windows of Franke & Co. It was made here for the State Reform School at Pontiac, Ill. It belongs to the new school of work, being done without the use of the paint brush, and the effect is fine.

Senator Stanley called on Mayor Harrison yesterday and told him that he didn't want to be a fellow inspector, for which the friends have been urging him. So it is very probable that an old John D. Crews will be selected for the fight this fall. It was reported yesterday that C. H. Reynolds is the South Side Republican to be selected.

The arguments in the case of L. W. Fisher against the Board of Trade were concluded yesterday morning before Judge Tuley. At the request of the case counsel to be in six weeks' vacation for counting up the amount argument took attention among the Congress. The arguments were the same as those advanced in the bill and matters which have been already published. The case was taken under advisement.

David J. Stark, a West Side burglar and general police nuisance, was sent last Saturday under the 6th of the criminal code for buying a South Side woman Schuettler, attempted a second theft and the two were caught in the act. Stark was sentenced to the Bridewell, Schuettler to the House of Correction, and both were fined $100 and costs. Stark was also sentenced to the House of Correction for the theft of the watch.

The corporators in the case of Mrs. Fisher against the Board of Trade were concluded yesterday morning before Judge Tuley. At the request of the case counsel to be in six weeks' vacation for counting up the amount argument took attention among the Congress. The arguments were the same as those advanced in the bill and matters which have been already published. The case was taken under advisement.

The corporation of the Chicago Elevated Railway Company was recorded and elected Chas. C. Joyce President, H. W. Ives Treasurer, and E. S. Paul Secretary. The authorized capital is $10,000,000, of which $1,000,000 is to be put on the market here and in New York. Each share will be taken to give a right of way from the bottom of the city to the outlying sections. They will be 40 feet above the street.

John Hayden, an old, half-headed man, was arrested by Officer Burton on the lake shore because he had a donation coupon in his pocket. Hayden yesterday morning plead guilty before Tuley, several men and women in the dock which he met were called on by the officer without any provocation. He said Hayden had handed the dollar, and with the coupon would get a ticket to the Lake Front Exposition. The officer let him off Tuesday on the statement of the man who is to receive dollars, as to how and where he got the money.

The Portugal Rod Club gave its usual Saturday night hop at the club-house on Lake avenue, near Thirty-first street, last evening. About forty couples were present and enjoyed the club's hospitality. The new club house was given up to billiards, bowling and other games, followed by dancing, refreshments by C. Hudson, gaseous smoke, and refreshments. The club gives a hop every Saturday night, confined exclusively to the members, but it is intended to be merely informal.

It is doubtful if any report is made to the Council regarding the water office, which a special committee has been investigating for two days. Evidence and inquiries have proved that the prisoners served the allegations of irregularities and abuse, but they are a matter of the committee. Wadsworth, Cameron, and Tomlinson will not sign the report, as the majority would rather some one besides the Democrats will sign it in order to get rid of it.

Mayor Harrison did a generous thing yesterday when he stated that he and his wife would be responsible for the salaries paid to those poor street boys who cleaned around Superintendent Hunt. The boys and all Workers all but Tomlinson and compliment that Hunt has put given a fair show before the committee. The difference agreed with the Board, that they were entertained. The Mayor then said that he knew the work as to the boys which Mr. Hunt had rendered.

A large number of officials were disappointed to the suit of the Tyler Paper Company against the John H. Jeffery Printing Company on behalf of the defendants. There was no appearance of the charges made by Albert Hamill, in his sworn bill that judges had been receiving the company's goods for the purpose of influencing the decisions. The officials will be over Tuesday on the continuance of the matter to receive the temporary injunction.

Yesterday morning Henry W. Davis, 12 years old, living with his mother at No. 151 South Morgan street, fell down with his father's tools, saying he thought that he would go out on the lake. He had not returned up to last night, when the police were notified by the mother, fearing that he had been drowned. He is described as five feet four inches in height, 100 pounds weight, negro build, light hair, and wore clothes and dark straw hat.

"Labor and Capital Are One." is the title given a new pamphlet just published in New York. It is a clear defense by Edward P. Shaw, in response to a request from a number of workmen, employers and professional men in New York. He gives his views at length on the present conflict between labor and capital. Copies of the pamphlet can be had on application to C. J. Hunt, Chamberlain Hotel, Chicago, who is distributing them among the Knights, for whom perhaps the book is specially designed.

The English-speaking labors held a meeting at No. 240 Fifth street several last night. The organization reports much improvement in the town and encouragement throughout the jurisdiction. It was stated that the Journeymen Tailors, despite increase, remained at a balance on Wednesday last. Their balance amounted to a reduction of hours from fifteen to ten per week. The progress seems to continue, balance to one if the strike get the sought that was already prepared, but at the latest gave the journeymen encouragement to quote.

Frank Hytrousek, Jos Pavlicek, and Jacob Kubat a few evenings ago carried several Bohemians to induce the employers to join the Labor Union or to quit work. When they reached the factory of Karl Theer, No. 23 West Eighteenth street, they were very signal and boisterous, and their demands not being complied with they broke the sash from the door and struck the foreman on the head with a bar of iron. Pavlicek and Kubat were captured before Justice Foster charged with disorderly and with causing grievous corporal and they each held to the fire in $1,000.

At a meeting of the Joint Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the County Board yesterday plans for a new bridge for the Lower Harbor were presented. It was decided to recommend to the board to advertise for bids for the erection of the structure, which is to be built of brick, the same part of the new plans in sight, while the rest will be iron, steel. The estimated cost is about $1,000. It was also decided to advertise for bids/sealed to be placed on the old building on the harbor, which is to be removed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Burton were surprised Friday evening by a party of friends and the members of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, it being the anniversary of their wedding. The Rev. Dr. Townsend presented the following from the society: A silver pitcher, seven table forks, from the Young Ladies' Missionary League; a gravy spoon and fruit knife, from the Young Ladies' Society of Living Love, accompanied by a beautiful floral arrangement; a silver cake basket, from the members of the choir; a silver ice pitcher and tray as regalia and many other presents from personal friends. Mr. and Mrs. Burton have for years past been prominent here in Luke's Church.

At A. O. U. W. Meeting in Aid of Parnell.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the Irish-American mass meeting under the auspices of the A. O. U. W. of Illinois met at Kelley's Hotel yesterday afternoon. County Delegate O'Neil presided. Upon the suggestion of the Rev. Father Tuomey of All Saints' Chapter, of Division 5, it was decided to call a special meeting of the County Board and a mass-meeting of the county organization next Wednesday evening at the Grand, representatives of which, through the State officers, to give to the order in Illinois. A delegate from the Parliamentary aid movement asked for co-operation on the working committees and produced authorization. A representative of the North Side Council said that about 1,000 tickets would be sold to the Grand. Letters will be sent to the Knights of the respective counties for the purpose an action of the movement may call action. It embraces a constitution, County Committee of Seven (five, Secretary to be elected), and other officers, to be elected at the meeting. It was stated that through the influence of a number of leading Democrats a guarantee fund of $1,000 had been raised to get Parnell here if he would come. The meeting will be held in the Grand Opera-house, and speakers will be invited from other cities. Finder charged with intoxication and with causing grievous corporal and was each held to the fire in $1,000.

Wanted Up at the Wards.

The body of Louis Lotz, the postal 21-year-old who disappeared from her home at No. 210 Thirty-third street a week ago Saturday, was found Saturday. A boy while sucking along the lake shore at the foot of Thirteenth street yesterday morning and the body in the water. It was identified by the police, and the parents were found and notified of the discovery. The girl left home on the evening mentioned, telling her mother that she was going to a friend's house. The parents have been unable to account for the girl's movements after leaving home, and the theory is that she committed suicide.

The members of the committee having the matter in charge are requested to meet at the Grand Opera-house this evening, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of completing the plans for the mass-meeting, which will be held on Tuesday evening, June 29. Delegates from the various societies will be present, and addresses will be delivered by prominent speakers. The committee has been unable to secure the Grand Opera-house for the evening mentioned, but has secured the Auditorium, which will be used for the meeting.

Mr. Parnell has announced the names that Messrs. Sexton and Dillon would be the Dublin and Newcastle sessions the next week.

Illinois Claimants of a New York Estate.

A remarkable estate said to be worth of the way from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000 is just now being made the subject of investigation, and if the claims of alleged heirs can be established several millions of dollars are likely to come into possession of Illinois claimants. The property is partly located around Bowne street in New York, covering about 10 acres, and on the Jamaica plains. It was owned by one Bowne Stevens, a native of Holland, who came to this country in 1647, and was himself not the original owner. The land having appreciated many times over the value assessed and by the executors. Within a few years, in consequence of a part of the property and about a year ago, it is claimed, that a lot to quit title, and both the land and money under the will of the late Mr. Bowne, to the living descendants of the heirs in Illinois are the city of Mr. E. Bowne, Mrs. Walter A. Wyckoff, Mrs. Walter S. Ogden, Mrs. Charles S. Bowne, Mrs. Frederick Bowne, Mrs. Edward Bowne, Mrs. Charles S. Bowne, Mrs. Edward Bowne, Mrs. Charles S. AT WASHINGTON PARK.

THE OFFICIAL OPENING CONGRESS FOR THE SEASON OF 1886.

A Grave Display of Beauty, Fashion, Horseflesh, and Other Appealing Into the Gamblers—Intrigue at the Club-House—Notable Equipages—The Colors of the Winner and the People Who Wore Them.

Though the Washington Park Club is only three years old it has already achieved a position if not a world-wide reputation, and its recent meeting for the season of 1886 yesterday afternoon was worthy of that reputation. It began on a programme from the turf, the club proper in great full yesterday. The first event was for such an occasion to prepared amongst the starters. The great event of the week was to be run however, the day was fine, the sun bright and warm, the grass green, the earth in perfect condition, and, to crown all, Lake Manogan was in the zest of its charming moods and furnished a gentle breeze to temper the heat of the day. Had the skies or the earth been otherwise, crowds of well and warm-hearted Chicagoans would have turned out to the park, for the love of the sport is in the blood of the people, and the Washington Park Club has become a favorite with them. Its grounds are easy of access, being situated in Englewood, on the Lake Shore branch of the Rock Island road, and through the cutting which connects the Lake Shore with the Rock Island road. Besides this, the Wentworth-avenue horsecars run to within a few minutes' walk of the park, and the Englewood avenue horsecars go to the entrance. The latter route passes through the prettiest part of the drive, and is the favorite one with those who prefer to ride behind their own horses. The Lake Shore drive, which is to be one of the finest drives in this or any country, leads from the Lincoln avenue boulevard to Washington Park, and passes through the handsome residence district of Lake View, Lincoln Park, Hyde Park, and Kenwood. The drive is now nearly completed, and when finished will be one of the most delightful in the country. Its course is along the lake shore, and the views which it commands are of the most charming character. Those who prefer the cars to the carriage can take the Cottage Grove avenue horsecars to Thirty-first street, where the Grand Boulevard, which has been laid out through Hyde Park, and passes through the handsome residence district of that suburb, is reached. Those who prefer the steam cars can take the Illinois Central suburban train, which leaves the depot at the foot of Twelfth street every fifteen minutes, and stops at the Thirty-first street station, which is but a few minutes' walk from the park entrance. NEW YORK, June 20.—[Special.]—Secretary Hamlin's series of pinpricks with the mercurial Gorin, a few days ago, to which the members of the Democratic party still owe their release from the prohibition of following Mr. Cleveland's constellation, Patterson quite generously agrees to do Hamlin extraordinary service in so doing, provided Hamlin will promise that Gorin was the right horse to the Cleveland's politics, and that if the Pantheon band of 4 consenting 4 would be honored at Hamlin's interpretation and choose unanimously to accept his efforts, John R. Sullivan of the Cincinnati Enquirer, who shares his hotel and hops of the youngest Democratic leader that Cleveland has to boast of, and called:

"When Hamlin has written down Gorin and has subjected to the most Pullman contempt—and a competition exists, but often disappointed. Hamlin may for the best and from all the Cleveland others."

While such conventions have taken especially to rise the list of public men, many evidence there have been since Hamlin from "Democrats" to Democrats contained, as the head the country." It is said that since the Cleveland result, but Hamlin wrote the Democratic chief confident and enthusiastic, but there have been exceptions to find the convention of all elements. The whole campaign for this is that the Democratic chief confident and enthusiastic, but there have been exceptions to find the convention of all elements.

Democrats Want Good Gold.

NEW YORK, June 20.—[Special.]—Democrats and Republicans alike are unanimous in declaring that the result of the Democratic convention at Chicago ruled the Democratic party out of the campaign. The Democrats are not only disappointed, but they are disgusted. They say that the convention has done more to injure the party than anything that has happened in years. Milwaukee, Wis., June 19.—[Special.]—It is an evident proof for a long time back here the Republicans of Wisconsin have so completely at sea as to the probable nomination of their State ticket as they appear to be at the present time. For once the political prophets have nothing to say, and the respected party seers, who are usually rank with a reference degree of certainty the outcome of approaching conventions, keep quiet that the position of the contestants for the most Republican State office is the most perplexing one in their lives. The only point upon which there appears to be a unanimous feeling is in relation to the choice for Governor. But one candidate has as yet been suggested—that one being the present incumbent of the office, Gov. J. M. Rusk. There is little or no question but what Gov. Rusk will, to unanimously, be further from this, the probable nominee of the next Republican State Convention is a mystery. Secretary of State H. C. A Motion to Increase the Pay of Twenty Colored Laborers on the Coal Archway at Fox Creek Ditch Contested by the Chief—Mrs. Scott's Suicide Claim—Fire on Alaska Railroad—The Standard Finds a Defect in the Shipping Bill—Other Notes.

Washington, D. C., June 19.—[Special.]—There was a notable illustration of the love of the Democratic party for the negro, in the House this afternoon. It was shown by the caustic rebuke of the leaders to keep the colored servants of the Navy Yard Colored from getting an increase of $1 per month each. The item came from on the Government estimate from the Senate, and was $1,100. In spite of the appropriation bill committee considered, by majority consent, the wages of servant below of the usual grade of about one here been increased. The House rules members of the Naval Committee, however, made an effort to have this item stricken out, and in the course of the debate which followed it developed that the Democratic members of the committee were opposed to the increase, and that they were overruled by the Republican majority. The motion to strike out was defeated by a vote of 100 to 77, and the item was retained in the bill. Before the vote was taken the chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Chief Engineer Melville, and other naval officers appeared before the committee, and explained that the increase was necessary, as the wages of the colored laborers were below the usual grade of wages paid to laborers in the employ of the Government. The Democratic members of the committee, however, were not to be moved by this argument, and they were overruled by the Republican majority. [illegible]

Recognizing the peculiar interest the public has always felt in the subject, THE TRIBUNE has caused to be prepared a history of these mattresses and something of what they are said to have accomplished. The stones are [illegible] for those to have lapped stones will be found duly set out below.

The Famous Mattress at Cave, Ind.

The mattress owned by Charles J. Hauser of Cave, Ind., has been in the possession of the Hauser family for about thirty years. Prior to that time it was owned by George Wolf, a shoemaker of Cave, Lawrence County. Mr. Wolf, the story goes, got it from a tramp doctor who traveled with him, and there the past history of the stone ends—or begins. The doctor, it is related, was arrested for drunkenness and died in jail, leaving the peculiar stone with Wolf as a set-off for an unpaid board bill. The question was the principal part of the legacy, and nearly taking care to improve Wolf left a proper share of the property and questioned again about that time Mr. Hauser, the father of the present owner of the stone, was the proud possessor of three hogs. One of these took sick and died. Then Hauser brought the stone—they say it is almost [illegible] and nearly as hard as flint—and placed it in the trough with the remaining hogs. It is almost needless to say that the other two hogs got well. The fact is vouched for by many residents of Cave. I am in ignorance of the whereabouts of the stone at present.

Continuing, Mr. Hauser said: "In the first case I have put to test of the kind was about eleven years ago. One of my hogs took sick with cholera and showed symptoms of hydrophobia afterward. It is a sure cure, by-the-way, I have never before, previous to a single application of the stone, which almost killed the hog, would it not for the fact that I took it away. The hog [illegible] a spell of fits and finally died. A couple of days after our hogs were taken sick [illegible] and had the stone applied to the mouth. ON WHICH SIDE THE PEOPLE'S BATTLE WILL BE FOUGHT.

Futile Efforts of Gladstone's Opponents to Stop the Vote Last Night by the Usual Commons—An Interview with Parnell—His Hopeful—A Conservative View—What the Leaders Are Saying and Doing.

LONDON, June 19.—[By Atlantic Cable to The Tribune.]—Mr. Gladstone's resignation, Mr. Chamberlain's journey to Scotland, his overtures en route, and his attack at Edinburgh absorb public attention here to-day to the exclusion of everything else in England. The fact that he is able to concentrate all his wits the same night as to 273 and 330, with no physician in attendance, is considered at his mental prime, the leader fully retains the secrets of his supporters. He is rapidly winning the atmosphere of the entire country to the question of conservative defeat of his opponents rejecting justice to Ireland and for the time and extending conservative employment to the new division of parties, and he is getting to a control the discussion [illegible] stubbornly resist all there is worth for himself within the next three weeks. The Gladstone Liberal Unionists are beginning to be organized as the Conservatives, and the "Three-thirty" Imperial Congress of the Unionist Democrats is beginning to realize the dangerous tendencies and desertion to it. It is [illegible] also clear to be necessary, Mr. Chamberlain has made it clear that one side consists of coercion ministers, and the other of constitution ministers. It is not Lord Hartington or Mr. Goschen, it is not Mr. Chamberlain or Lord Salisbury or Mr. Gladstone. It is power to or will longer to a policy of previous constituents, or discovered under the controlling policy of the Tory party. In a word, the point in the nine hundred and [illegible] Liberal majority in the elections of [illegible], seems for practical issues to vote himself, and no further consideration by a continuance of the rule of Lloyd and Irish. The feeling is in favor of Mr. Gladstone and his policy, and the strongest sentiment that the Irish home rule is important to practical issues on English soil, for the last two days.

The closing discussion of the Irish measure has the appearance of being very much [illegible] over even Easter than Mr. Chamberlain's. The former's more declaration has the appearance of a gradual to the majority vote of the country, and the [illegible] of the Liberal party is struggling to the duty to keep and stick to the principles of the constituency of the people of Ireland. THEY HAD NO BOODLE.

WILL SPOOK OF THE MIAMI IS COUNTY COMMISSIONER.

A. H. Andrews & Co. Afraid to Put In an Extravagant Bid in Case He Has the Scheme of the Commissioners—Two Hundred Dollar Bologney Chain for a Court-House, and Other Things in Contrast as an Excuse for Letting the Job at a High Price to Another Bidder.

What appears to be one of the most unique boodle attempts ever perpetrated on the taxpayers of a community is a piece of County Commissioner job just brought to light in Miami County, this, through a letter sent to the local press here by Messrs. A. H. Andrews & Co., the well-known Chicago fair grounds speculators. The job for which Messrs. Andrews & Co. were ready to bribe the Miami County Commissioners in their private room, Peru, Ind., and Henderson, the three Commissioners of Miami County, admitted about the beginning of May for contracts to furnish the new county court-house there, and among the bidders were the Council Bros. Furniture Co. of Toledo, O., and Messrs. A. H. Andrews & Co., No. 132 Wabash avenue, Chicago. It was at last announced by the Commissioners that their own solicitor would prepare the drawings and specifications for the work upon which competitive bids would be received, but after the Commissioners had received a bid from Andrews & Co. they decided that their own solicitor should not prepare the drawings for the work. Extraordinary action for the Commissioners followed, and on a Friday afternoon in April they gave the firm of Andrews & Co. a gilt-edge tip, including a private interview with the Commissioners, and a promise that they would be allowed, for after the Commissioners had received a bid from Andrews & Co. they decided that they would prepare the drawings and specifications themselves, and a bid in Andrews's name would be received. Andrews & Co. then went to Peru, Ind., and gave the boys a jolly good time, including a trip to Saginaw. The Commissioners were the guests of their fellow-townsmen on Saturday, and during their visit to Peru Andrews & Co. had their bid raised from $30,000 to $35,000 for the furnishing of the court-house.

In giving over the selection and plans of the Commissioners Mr. H. Wagoner, the designer of Messrs. A. H. Andrews & Co., became employed in the interests of the contractors there apparently had been sent to Mr. Wagoner's residence in Peru, Ind., to secure his services. Mr. Wagoner's testimony before the grand jury, however, and even though Andrews & Co. were ready to bribe their way, they had, it seems to settle their bill for the Commissioners' dining at their residence. Mr. Wagoner testified that he was employed by the Commissioners to prepare the plans for the court-house, and that he was told by the Commissioners that they had received a bid from Andrews & Co. for $30,000, and that they would have to get it down to $25,000. Mr. Wagoner testified

MISTAKES OF PARENTS.

WHAT ONE YOUNG LADY HAS TO SAY ON THE WAY THEY ORDER HER.

Fast Dressing and Its Results—Even the Children Lose Interest in Clothes—Mistaken Words Parents Make in Marking Out Careers for Their Children—Overall Into the Last—Fathers Who Do Nothing on the Piano-Stool—Shades of Good Advice.

The attitude of Mona, about which the Inquirer was so much concerned a few years ago, been of social importance inside the green exhibit with the men and women of the country they are visiting. Among the women who are making these visits abroad—and the classes are numerous and various—there are some who are making a study of such conditions as the parents of our city.

Every opinion seems to go to or among the most frequent of these attitudes. Many parents seem to consider themselves, from the mere fact of parentage, as being "in their element" whether mother's knows," as Mona Figure would say. Poetic, accommodating, considerate, they denounce, and assert but give the individuals who are intrusive to their care and who are helpless in their hands. Even women whose children have fortunes are under the control are they are under their guardianship are to doubtless. There are others so often for heroism as for forgetfulness. They are kept perpetually clothed, amused beyond the power of nervous endurance, and they usually end by being impervious to all the excitements with which their lives are daring been inundated. One of the most common contrasts is certainly a mistake, and that there was not in the environments of a child is much better than children shut away out of doors during an entire day, or who is prevented and away from the natural lives of their mates. Turn these same with the best possible conditions upon their arrival, they will be happy and satisfy the child as good. They will not be tired out, nervous, or unmanageable. There are many girls whose mothers, young themselves, have grown with their children, and who are happy and satisfied in their companionship. To a certain extent these girls are to be envied. But they will be, on certain days, to themselves or others. They are nervous their mothers and their minds and nerves not much better than if shut in a room at the full their sisters, whose mothers have brought them up in a more conventional manner. There are girls of many varieties, young women, born with the best possible conditions upon which to build a character, who are ruined by ignorance and indifference. Their parents are to be blamed, but they are not to be considered as criminals. They are merely blind and unwise. Among the many girls whom I have known, I can only recall two who were ruined by positive wickedness on the part of their parents. Both of these were girls of unusual beauty, and were brought up in a manner which was calculated to develop their worst qualities. Both were petted and indulged to the last degree, and were taught that they were to be admired and worshiped for their beauty. Both were allowed to do as they pleased, and were never required to control themselves in any way. Both were brought up in a manner which was calculated to develop their worst qualities. Both were allowed to do as they pleased, and were never required to control themselves in any way. Both were brought up in a manner which was calculated to develop their worst qualities.

Another great mistake of parents is made a little further on down the road—the mistake of not doing enough for the children. Most parents have somewhere about or what their children plan to do in their world, and it is sometimes very hard to modify or change them to accommodate with the child's natural tastes. There are the parents of a boy who thinks I had an acquaintance who had determined, I think, even before the boy's birth, that he was to be a lawyer. The boy proved to have no taste whatever for the law, and after a long struggle on the part of the parents, the boy was allowed to go into business. He has been very successful in that line, and is now a prosperous man, but sometimes I think that he has never quite forgiven his parents for the mistake. The reverse of this is the case of a girl who was brought up to be a musician. She had no taste for music, and after many years of study and practice, and the expenditure of a great deal of money, she was allowed to give it up. She is now a very happy and successful wife and mother, and has never regretted the time and money spent upon her education, although she has never used it professionally. Both these cases were mistakes, but they were not criminal ones. The parents were not to blame for the children's lack of taste, and could not help it. But there are many cases in which parents are to blame for the mistakes which they make in the education of their children. There are those who are so anxious to have their children do something that they do not stop to consider whether they are fitted for it or not. They are always thinking of what their children are going to be, and never of what they are. They are always planning for the future, and never for the present. They are always thinking of what their children are going to do, and never of what they are doing. They are always thinking of what their children are going to be, and never of what they are.

THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Board Vote Having a Lot for a Manse that a Library Stable Was to the Deed—Some Objections to Which Will Be Met.

Some new complications in the congregation of the First Baptist Church a great society, after an outlay of $1,000 was made necessary by it. It was currently reported in the neighborhood of the offices on South Park avenue that a move was impending for the purchase of a manse or of lots for erecting the church on on the south. It was given out that the new property so soon a busy centre that the church could not be reached by the present parishioners. It appeared that the church could not be reached by the present parishioners. It appeared that the church could not be reached by the present parishioners.

The church owns the two contiguous lots thereto the buildings and the property in question, which may revert to a middle-class for price. A. C. Cunningham & Co. have agents. The deed for purchase had made a condition to that and the site was being called for. It could be used not a manse, but should a ground necessary. It appeared that several members of the old First Church were not pleased with the proposed change, and desired that the old site be retained. They also objected to the proposed location, as they thought that it would be out of the way for many of the members. It was given out that the new property so soon a busy centre that the church could not be reached by the present parishioners. It appeared that the church could not be reached by the present parishioners.

Now that the church sites may not be settled to it is said to build a new one of stone to cost not much less than $100,000, to be completed by January next. The present site is valuable, and it is said that it may be sold to advantage. The property is to be sold to advantage. The property is to be sold to advantage. Why the Count de Paris Is to Be Expelled—His Wife Now Dangerous—Not Because of Anarchy Talk and Fortune—The Glamour of the Fourteenth—Determined to Be the Author—Rumoring Utterance of the Anarchists.

Paris, June 5.—[Special Correspondence.]—The Princes, the Princes, and always the Princes! Everyone anything else is talked about. They are to be expelled. No doubt every one here is certain. But why? And after will be the exact cause France? I admit these questions concerning of me old friend Camille Dreyfus. You will recognize the name as that of a prominent Republican deputy. Indeed, he is one of the most important men in the Chamber, and is one of those to whom the chief authority of expelling the Princes has been intrusted for the republication. "Pray," I asked, "is the real reason for the present move you?" "A demand has been made for it," he replied, "which we cannot refuse. I don't care, personally, to talk about him, but some Frenchmen, and one of us. But a pretense to that end has been brought to bear upon the Ministry and have a majority of the Deputies, that we are to banish or avoid it." "And whereas," I asked, "does the pretense you use?" "Over the pretense," said M. Dreyfus, "Over the pretense and gave all. Over the pretense and gave all. Over the pretense and gave all.

The quiet retreat of Appomattox was directly antagonist to Grant. He became no less conspicuous after the murder of Lincoln, but its result was the application of the very principles Lincoln had ever applied further to thought advocated. The one feature not evident to long "reconstruction" period; to defend the course that Grant had pursued to Lee and his soldiers, and ergo men were taken with the opening to present the surrender of Lee to reason, for, for it was essential to that Grant. The first consideration was verbal and made through Mr. Beverly Johnson, who acted as the legal adviser of Lee. He came to me to have Grant's opinion. I answered that Grant was free to do determination to cope to his own terms, and so informed Mr. Johnson. Grant, however, thought that Lee should go through the form of asking for parole, in order to obtain for complete submission. Lee, though averse willing to make the application, was assured to be assured to advance that Grant would favorably receive it. Lee, did, then in accordance to Richmond, made known his feeling of Lee to Grant, through Lee, Longstreet, Grant received me to answer Mr. Johnson's letter to Lee, in which I stated that Grant would be pleased to receive Lee's application for parole, in the general terms, and the other statement of the proposed terms of surrender. Grant had no new proposal, and the only point that we were pressed upon, and which he subsequently consented to, was that officers should be allowed to retain their side arms. Grant was firm in his determination that the officers and men surrendered should be paroled and disqualified from taking up arms against the United States unless properly exchanged. Lee, however, was not present at the meeting between Grant and myself, but was in his own camp awaiting the result of our conference. Grant, Longstreet, Gordon, Pendleton, Babcock and myself were present at the meeting. Grant wrote the terms of surrender in my presence, and when he had finished reading what he had written I remarked that the terms were very liberal, and that I was sure they would have a good effect upon the public mind. He replied that he was glad I approved of them, as he wished to have my opinion, and that he had written them with the intention of conciliating the people of the South, and that he was anxious to do everything in his power to restore peace and harmony. He said that the terms he had written would have to be submitted to the President, and that he would not change them without his approval. He then left the room, and I remained with Longstreet, Gordon, Pendleton and Babcock, discussing the terms. Grant soon returned and said that the President approved of the terms, and that he would not change them

HOW TO GET THERE, WHERE TO GO, AND WHAT TO SEE.

Incredible Advice for Summer Visitors to the Switzerland of America—Information Which Will Not Be Found in the Guide-Books—The Best of the Summer Is Four Times Too Hot—A Few Hotbeds Vice Are Not.

In spite of the well deserved fame of the scenic attractions of the White Mountains of New Hampshire it is doubtful whether a fourth part of the annual visitors manage to see the things best worth seeing, or remember the few which they do see without getting the impression slightly scrambling the notes they had originally recorded. Very few take the trouble to inform themselves beforehand as to the relative merits of the various places of resort, and all those have made up their minds to adhere as to the most delightful way to spend. The guidebook fails to afford the kind of information needed. It is not within the province of a guidebook to express opinions upon the seasons, routes, and resorts. The fact is that although Mount Washington is the highest mountain east of the Rockies and south of Canada, the mountain region, considered as one mass, and, with rare exceptions, is very much alike, and one has only to see a few of the mountains to have seen them all. Any one who has visited Switzerland will be disappointed in the White Mountains. They are not to be compared to many other attractions of scenery in the Northern States. With reference to economical traveling the attention is proverbial. The cities and about the mountains is left to accompany notes and prices. There are no other and cheaper hotels in the country of the famous hostelries enumerated in the guidebooks, and no hotel can afford to entertain at their respective stations. The managers of stations. From the time you get out on the dreariness from Gorham to the top, or even within the upper grounds of the Summit House, at the Fabyan House, the Glen House, the Crawford House, the Profile House, the Franconia House, the Bethlehem, Wing from Providence, Jefferson, etc.—are all a half-day's journey from the nearest point of attraction. Though all the rates the charges are high. There is one noticeable great fault, and a very good one it is, to find a way. The others are to be avoided, each for its own reason. The best manner to spend a week in the mountains would be one passing by Intervale, Jackson, Glen,

The Result of the Late Labor Troubles—No Suspension—Is Easing—Money Plenty—What Is Going to the Bar of Building—The Wisconsin Central Has Bought All the Land It Needs—A Big Transaction in Acre Property—Condition of the Week.

The number of business men in real estate circles was not as high as that of several previous weeks, and there was evidence of the depressing summer influence—the season of vacations and quick selection from business matters. The most active men in connection with real estate, the owners of vacant property, are beginning to think of the transfer of the land still productive from its use for building purposes. "I have it on," one of an agent, "that we are going to have a dull summer, and we are not going to have a dollar's worth of real estate sold. We are not going to let the effect of the labor agitation to end estate as well as every other branch of trade. I don't see how we can expect to escape it. The people who have money to invest will seek for things to put their money in, and only the men who have let the effect of the agitation must be left to the customers. Then, too, many of us who have made enough money to afford to spend the summer away from the city have got to be away, and the coming fall will be a good deal of a loss. Then, too, there is the Columbian Exposition, that is to come next year
